rue construction of the statute. he language of the act of April, 1842, is whengany tax of any of the estates, real or personal all remain unpaid on the first day of Februaanest ensuing the time prescribed by law for de delivery of the Assessment Roll to the colleters of the said city, it shall be lawful for the ellectors whose duty it shall be, to collect such at, to charge, receive and collect upon such tax a remaining unpaid on the last day of each south, between the month of November and the ine prescribed by law for the collectors in the gid city, to make their returns to the chamber-

low, we apprehend the following is the true struction of these clauses, and these clauses

Hyou offer to pay your tax any time previous he 1st February the Comptroller must rebate listerest at the rate of six per cent. a year for time between the offer to pay and the 1st bruary.

Myou let the 1st of February slip by and your remains unpaid on the 1st of April, then must pay one per cent. on the amount of your addition to which, the Collector "is authorto charge, receive and collect upon such tax remaining unpaid on the last day of each ath between the month of November and the it prescribed by law for the Collectors to make return to the Chamberlain or Treasurer mefor, a further addition of one per cent. on the pount of such Tax.

Now we apprehend it is clear that this second mper cent. (all of which is penal in its characs.) cannot be collected except it is not only due the end of each month after November, but acally due at the time (1st of April by the law of 25) when the books are returned to the Compnier. One per cent. and one per cent. only, thereire, can the citizen be mulcted, who pays his tax rany time before the 1st of April or before the me the Collector returns his books.

That the Comptroiler cannot, after the first of innary, coerce the payment of the one per cent., ould appear to be additionally evident, because e power to collect this second one per cent. is mfined to the Collectors. New, if the Corporaon have had any other object in view, such as colleting monthly one per cent. after the first of Janary, the Legislature has not by the act referred scarried out such intention. An Ex-Alderman.

IMPRISONED FOR THE 'CRIME' OF MODESTY .servant girl was recently brought before a Chelnham (England) magistrate for running away om service. She stated that the reason why she it was because she was obliged to go through the san's bed-room to her own room! The magisate, however, sent her to jail for fourteen days. he London Sun says the decision was a perfect briesque upon justice, and adds: " Possibly beause the delinquent was poor and lowly born, the mistrate took it for granted that her disinclinain to see how a man looked in his night-cap was zere mock-modesty, such as did not become her muon; but we can tell this righteous Solon that ninnate sense of delicacy is by no means confined the upper classes of society: the humble, untumed peasant girl may have as virtuous and sensithe a feminine instinct as the most refined patrican beauty. Had the servant maid in question scrificed her notions of propriety to her worldly strate's opinion, have acted with sense and prudence; but because she was unable to play the hypocrite, and treat as a thing of no account what the deemed highly indelicate, she has been conticted of a gross offence, and punished according-We have often heard of women being committed to jail for bad behavior; but this is the first ine, we believe, 'within the memory of the oldstinhabitant,' that a servant maid was ever imrisoned for the crime of modesty!"
